“Jamaican Tectonics: Integrating GPS, Geomorphology, and Gravity“

Jamaica has plenty of earthquakes, but where are the active faults? A team of four researchers, a PhD student and an undergrad spent three weeks in Jamaica, combining different data and different expertise, investigating two major fault zones and searching for evidence of past earthquake activity. Did they find anything? Come find out!